Week 10 Term Two 2017

CELEBRATING LEARNING & ACHIEVEMENT

What an exciting term of learning we have had! Yesterday the Year 0 to 6 students showcased their inquiry learning with a wonderful celebration in the hall. Students were able to share what they had learnt over the term with their whanau and this was well received by all those who attended. Thank you to all those who were able to join in this special sharing time. Meanwhile the Year 7 & 8 students are busy learning all about robotics! Our expert STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) teacher is in this week leading the learning in Mangopare. Keep an eye on school dojo for pics of the hands-on learning that is happening for our Intermediate students.

We are pleased to have been able to team up with a philanthropic organisation that sends unwanted school furniture and books to our neighbours in the Pacific Islands. Our old desks and chairs are due to be collected and prepared for shipping at the beginning of Term 3 and will furnish two classrooms.

Welcome to Miss Peters! With an increasing new entrant roll, the decision was made to move the opening of the new board funded class forward to the beginning of the term. We look forward to welcoming our new learners to Kapowai room.

Thank you to everyone who has contributed to our learning community this term we have appreciated your support! Have a well deserved break and we look forward to welcoming you back in the new term.

House challenge!

I could smell the fear of my friends in Hobson, as they quivered as we waited for our turn!

I could see the hall shake as we yelled our hearts out!

I could hear the booming voices of Hobson lifting the roof of our hall!

I could feel myself shake like crazy as my nerves got higher and higher!

I could taste the saliva building up in my mouth as I screamed the school haka!

The Haka Challenge

I could hear my house members yelling loudly, trying to show the judges we had mana.

I could feel my heart pound like a drum hitting strongly.

I could taste my fear as I boomed out my school's haka with pride.

I could smell nerve racking air that all the houses breathed while watching everyone present their haka.

I could see the jelly-wobble nerves of kids getting up to powerfully boom out the haka.

By Ella (Mokomoko room)

Last Friday morning we held our termly 'House Event'. This term's event was a cultural challenge which involved each house learning and performing our school haka. Our school haka was first taught to our Senior Kapa Haka group and they performed it at Papakura Intermediate School's renaming ceremony earlier in the year. This term our senior Kapa Haka members were leaders in teaching their house the haka and Friday's event was spine tingling and tear jerking. We encourage you to come along to assembly this Friday as we will be performing our school haka with pride.

Inquiry Sharing

Yesterday the hall was packed with parents and whanau who had come to see the Years 0-6 classes share their learning about a variety of Ancient Civilizations.

It was wonderful to see the variety of dances performed and to see the children so involved with learning about another culture.

The displays around the hall were a great sharing of all the aspects the children had been investigating, there were even some tasty food samples.

Thank you to Jenny Glover who had helped research and teach the various cultural dances.

Tough Guy and Gal Challenge

My Fun-Filled Muddy Adventure

I snatched my bag from the bus full of hurrying children, and walked down the shiny metal steps. I was beaming with excitement as I was about to participate in my first ever mud run! Swarms of children, teachers and parents were entering the venue, all seemingly as excited as I was. We laid out a bright blue tarpaulin and placed all of our belongings onto it. From the corner of my eye I noticed a huge black truck with speakers surrounding it. Children began to gather around and dance to the booming music. Our group of Karaka children joined in and began to dance. There was a prize for the school who could do the best singing and dancing, and our school won! The prize was popcorn for the entire school, which would soon be delivered directly to us. The man on the stage quickly discussed the briefing before we began the event.

A few moments later, we were all directed towards a narrow pathway that would be the entrance for the run. The ground was covered in squelchy, squishy mud, and the mud run hadn't even begun yet! Marshals were sending people off in groups so the track and obstacles wouldn't become congested. Eventually we were released, and off we went! We ran down a muddy track, surrounded with trees and bushes splattered with mud. I could hear a faint squealing and shrieking coming from the other side of the trees. As we came out the other side of the trees I realised why everyone was shrieking. A group of girls were sliding down a slippery mudslide, and plummeting into the dark, murky water. The water looked disgusting, but it also looked like fun so I slowly slid down and cautiously stepped into the water.

"Argh! I'm stuck!" I squealed, as I struggled to free myself from the hungry mud monster that was engulfing my shoe. I managed to free myself, and continued to trudge up the tiring hill. I had never seen this much mud in my entire life! Soon, I came across the first obstacle - a tall fence post which you had to climb over. The wood was covered in slimy mud, and it made it difficult to climb over. I swung my legs over the top and leapt down, landing in a mushy pile of mud. It was downhill from there, but I could see more tricky obstacles ahead. Next was a row of tunnels, very low tunnels! I hesitantly got to my hands and knees, but knew that I had to go through in order to get to the other side. The tunnel was very long and narrow, and filled with gooeey mud. When I got to the end of the tunnel, a huge smile stretched across my face. I was covered head to toe in thick, swampy mud!

A while later, and after countless challenges the mud run was nearly complete! I could see the finish line, so my friends and I all joined hands to finish the race together. We all ran down the track towards the line, and we couldn't stop smiling. We had officially completed the mud run!

It was tough at times, but we managed to push through and finish.
